END YOUTH HOMELESSNESS

Ideas for societies and students:

1 HOST A TOURNAMENT

What better way is there to connect with your fellow students than with a bit of healthy competition! Maybe you've got a course full of FIFA fans? Or you know the rugby society love playing Call of Duty? Whatever the game, this is a great opportunity to make up for lost time interacting with your mates. Charge a donation to join the tournament (suggested £10) and you never know your uni might just supply you with a prize for the winner. If you are unsure of how to set up an online tournament, just get in touch and we can supply you with all of the information you need.

BATTLE OF THE SOCIETIES

Let's be honest, there is always rivalry between different societies and even more between different uni's! Why not pitch the sports teams against each other in an e-sports tournament or set up an Overwatch league with another Uni. Whatever you choose, making it into a tournament or competition will raise the stakes and make it easier for people to get involved. Don't forget to stream the matches on Twitch and link this to your Just Giving Page- to learn how to do this click here.

2 HOST A BOARD GAMES NIGHT

Now that we've all completed Netflix and can't face yet another Zoom quiz, virtual board games are a great alternative. Play against friends or family whilst teaming up in groups or playing in a solo league. Ask everyone to donate to take part and organise a prize for the winner. If you've not tried online board games before there are loads available, many for free. For a guide on where and how to play read this article. If you're living with housemates or family, organise a physical games night and raise sponsorship; you could play a different game every night!

3 GAME-SWAP

For those of you who consider yourself a bit of a gaming connoisseur, why not set up a 'game swap'; the gaming version of a book swap! If you've got a game that you think your friend would love then why not send it to them and they send one back in return. This could be scaled up for a gaming society or group, with every member sharing a suggestion. You could set up mini-challenges and competitions around this and ask people to donate to play.

*Please make sure to disinfect and clean any physical games that you are swapping with friends and family.

4 IT'S A TEAM EFFORT

For those of you living with housemates or family, why not get your bubble together and try to complete a game. You could tag-team it or complete it in co-op mode. Ask for sponsorship from family and friends and let them set forfeits and challenges to make it harder. You could do a gaming marathon or live stream in fancy dress! You could even challenge your Granny or Mum! Whatever you do will be helping to raise funds for vulnerable young people facing homelessness.
